Gastric subepithelial lesion complicated with abscess: A case report and literature review

Sung Bum Kim, Myung Jin Oh, Si Hyung Lee

Abstract

Gastric abscess is a localized pyogenic inflammation of the gastric wall, which is a much rarer entity as a form of suppurative gastritis. The rarity of gastric abscess may be associated with the difficulty of early diagnosis and high mortality as a result. In general, subepithelial lesion (SEL) of the stomach is incidentally detected during the
