[PDF] Reflectance spectrophotometry for the assessment of ...<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/download?doi=...>

A representative reflectance spectrophotometry (RS) spectrum measured in the colon is compared with a theoretical spectrum containing 68% oxyhemoglobin and 32% deoxyhemoglobin. The RS and theoretical spectra were obtained as described in [21].

Reflectance spectrophotometry for the assessment of gastroduodenal mucosal perfusion. Leung FW, Morishita T, Livingston EH, Reedy T, Guth PH. Reflectance spectrophotometry in assessing gastroduodenal mucosal perfusion was evaluated. Ischemia without congestion, e.g., during hemorrhagic hypotension or celiac artery occlusion, was associated with ...

The use of reflectance spectrophotometry (RS) for mucosal hemodynamic measurement relies on the recognition of changes in indexes of mucosal hemoglobin concentration and oxygen saturation.

Objective assessment of gastrointestinal mucosal color is extremely important in the endoscopic diagnosis of digestive tract disease. In this paper, we propose a method to clarify the spectral characteristics of gastric and colon cancer. A large number of spectral reflectance data of mucous membrane are measured by the endoscopic spectroscopy system.

Apr 01, 2020 - Significance: Reflectance spectral analysis of coronary thrombus provides new insights into the pathology of STEMI, with potential clinical implications for emergency patient care. Further studies are warranted for validation as a point-of-care stratification tool in predicting the degree of microvascular injury and clinical outcomes in STEMI.
