Hepatocellular carcinoma: Surgeon's view on latest findings and future perspectives

Jan Erik Slotta, Otto Kollmar, Volker Ellenrieder, B Michael Ghadimi, Kia Homayounfar

Abstract

Hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) is the most common liver-derived malignancy with a high fatality rate. Risk factors for the development of HCC have been identified and are clearly described. However, due to the lack of tumor-specific symptoms, HCC are diagnosed at progressed tumor stages in most patients, and thus curative
