Hepatitis B among Inuit: A review with focus on Greenland Inuit

Karsten Fleischer Rex, Stig Andersen, Henrik Bygum Krarup

Abstract

Hepatitis B virus (HBV) infection is a disease with a highly variable course. Chronic HBV infection may cause end-stage liver disease including cirrhosis and hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC), which is the 3rd most common cause of cancer related death due to the poor prognosis. The prevalence of HBV infection is low in many countries. Still, it
