Management of syndesmotic injuries: What is the evidence?

Marc Schnetzke, ¹⁸ Sven Y Vetter, Nils Beisemann, Benedict Swartman, Paul A Grützner, Jochen Franke

Abstract

Ankle fractures are accompanied by a syndesmotic injury in about 10% of operatively treated ankle fractures. Usually, the total rupture of the syndesmotic ligaments with an external rotation force is associated with a Weber type B or C fracture or a Maisonneuve fracture. The clinical assessment should consist of a comprehensive history including mechanism of injury followed by a specific physical
