Postpartum intrauterine device contraception: A review

Shadi Rezai, Pameela Bisram, Hasan Nezam Ray Mercado, Cassandra E Henderson

Abstract*OBJECTIVE:

To review the safety (infection, perforation) and efficacy (expulsion, continuation rates, pregnancy) of copper and Levonorgestrel-releasing IUD insertion in the postpartum, with special attention to specific time frames for insertion that leads to the best clinical outcomes.

METHODS:

MEDLINE, PubMed and Google Scholar were searched for randomized controlled trials and prospective cohort studies of IUD insertions at different times during the postpartum period. Time of insertion during the postpartum period was documented specifically, immediate post placenta period (within 10 minutes), early post placenta period (10 minutes to 72 hours), and delayed/interval period (greater than 6 weeks). Other study variables included mode of delivery, vaginal versus cesarean, manual versus use of a device to insert the IUD.
