New treatments for diabetic macular edema

Farhan H Zudi, Ejaz A Ansari

Abstract

This review summarises the latest treatment options for DME by reviewing the outcomes of studies of new agents used in its management. Diabetic retinopathy is an important and increasingly prevalent cause of preventable blindness worldwide. To meet this increasing burden there has recently been a proliferation of pharmacological therapies being used in clinical practice. A variety of medical treatment options now exist for diabetic macular edema (DME). This includes commonly used intravitreal anti-VEGF agents, topical
