COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

ESPS Manuscript NO: 11012 Title of the Article: “Explore and develop a model to maintain and to build upon dental clinic open for all in the developing regions with primary focus on India” In this research paper, the authors made efforts to develop a model dental clinic (or model dental clinics) open to all persons in the developing world. COMMENT The authors designed this research paper properly. However, for this paper to be fit for publication in an academic journal, the authors must fulfill the following conditions. They are: 1. The title should read: “Explore and develop ...open to...in the developing world or alternatively, in the developing regions of the world” 2. The English of the article is poor. The technical editor of the journal must overhaul it. Some few examples are: “don’t” instead of “do not”; the frequent use of “And” to start a sentence. 3. The first sentence of the INTRODUCTION appears to be incomplete: “In developing nations such as India...below poverty line.” 4. What do we mean by developing regions? GDP means gross domestic product and not the definition given to it by the authors. Although the authors did a good explanation, the logic of the first paragraph does not match with that of the second paragraph. The authors should simplify their explanations and match them with paragraphs 1 & 2 meaningfully. 5. The Tables should have only one horizontal line above it. No other horizontal and vertical line should appear in the Table. 6. Figure 1 and similar slice type graphical presentations are not necessary. 7. The authors should replace Figure 7 by a Table. 8. References 7 – 13 are from the Internet. The authors should present them in the manner that such references are presented in a scientific article. 9. The article is very lengthy. If the number of words exceeds the number that the journal stipulated for research papers, it
