SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Dear authors, As a whole, this paper is well written. As you described, this case is rare and laparoscopy seemed to be useful for the diagnosis of follicular lymphoma in this case. I have a little suggestion about the sentence of your conclusion. You wrote that “Therefore, early detection of follicular lymphoma is crucial for the prognosis of patients. When the lymphoma is transformed, the mortality rate of patients increases. Laparoscopy is very important for diagnosing ascites due to unexplained reasons, and it is sometimes important for the treatment and prognosis of patients.” You repeated similar words, “crucial” and “important” in the above sentences. In addition, the meaning of the last sentence is a little difficult to understand. I guess the last sentence may be better to change to “Laparoscopy is very useful for diagnosing ascites due to unexplained reasons, and it is sometimes important for the determining the treatment plan for those patients and predicting the prognosis.”
