SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

The authors discuss the combined use of biomarkers and imaging methods in order to allow early evaluation of the appropriateness of treatment and response to treatment about Neuroendocrine tumors (NETs). The article is well written. The issue of the article is within the scope of the journal. A representative and updated bibliography has been used. The results described in the article constitute an important contribution to the area of knowledge, and represent an advance. However, the organization of content presentation should be improved: a) The information must be structured in sections. There should be at least an introductory section, a discussion section, and some conclusions. b) The introduction should describe how the literature search was carried out to carry out the review. c) Some results should be shown in table format in order to be able to compare them.
