COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Dear Drs. Croagh and Lubel: Thank you for sending your manuscript (Title: The natural history of chronic hepatitis B: the evolution of our understanding of a disease of global significance) to the World Journal of Gastroenterology. Your article described chronic hepatitis B (CHB) in its epidemiology, nature progress, and immune mechanism. The literature cited in the manuscript was new and comprehensive, and the writing is fluent. No ethics concern is related. There are a few small issues need to be revised: 1) In page 1: at the end of the title, no no full point is needed. 2) In page 6, line 2, after "For example", a comma is needed. 3) In page 22, line 2, Organization WH is WHO?

Best Wishes, Sincerely Yours, Shuangteng He, M.D., Ph.D.

The review manuscript by Croagh and Lubel is well written and can be published after revised properly. 1. Figure 1. "HBV virus" should be "HBV." 2. Table 1. The 5th column; "percutaneous" transmission should be precisely mentioned (for example, intravenous drug abuse). 3. p. 5, l. 8; "(alanine aminotransferase) ALT" should be "alanine aminotransferase (ALT)."

COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Chronic hepatitis B virus infection is a worldwide public health problem. Natural history of chronic hepatitis B virus infection is determined by a complex interplay of viral, host and environmental factors. Some detail of natural history is not well established till now. This review article summarized the most updated progress in this field. and I recommend this manuscript to be published in your journal.
