COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

This a good effort to show the efficiency of the accelerated (1h) rate protocol. It is necessary to amend few things. The title (clinical..)doesn't correlate with the text. There is no evidence of clinical impact. There is no direct comparison of safety between the two protocols. The standard (2h)rate protocol named total or traditional elsewhere which is not appropriate Table 2 needs corrections (familiarity can't stand for family history and the same happens with mesi) Tables 3 and 4 are similar and without important information

COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Good study well written. In the methods section, did you mean the data was collected retrospectively but the consent was obtained prospectively? this beat was not clear, otherwise. well done
