SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

This is an interesting study undertaken by the authors on temporality of humoral immune response in COVID-19 patients. it would have been interesting to see the results of the study being compared to results from other studies in the area as well as in other parts of the world. Authors could present the comparison in the form of a table. Another point that I would like to convey here is that the discussion appears too long and drags in between. If authors could cut it little bit short it will make for a lucid read.
