I am appreciated of your comments on my article, and I have revised all points.

1. All errors of spelling and incorrect medical terminology have being corrected.
2. Allgrove and autonomic disturbance (making it 4 "A") were added.
3. I checked the definition of primary achalasia and changed secondary achalasia to Triple A syndrome to Triple A syndrome related to achalasia.
4. About Eckardt score, I used integer number.
5. I found status of case 3 after POEM procedure 24 months and add it in my article. These all patients were keeping follow-up in our hospital.
6. I rewrote the conclusion that emphasized the efficacy and safety of POEM procedure.

Thank you for revising the manuscript and clarifying the difference between primary achlasia and secondary achalsia related to triple A syndrome and providing a follow up for the 3rd patient. I am not sure if the conclusion of the study (in the abstract section) is that POEM is recommended for treatment of achlasia secondary to triple A syndrome. I think it may be more appropriate to state that POEM is "efficacious and safe" for treatment of achlasia secondary to triple A syndrome OR adjust it to the conclusion listed in the actual manuscript. I also noticed minor grammatical issues that may need to be corrected prior to submission. I also noticed that there is a table associated with the submission but was not cited anywhere in the manuscript.
