#1 Thank you for your contribution to the medical field. The article has been presented in a good way; most of the questions that the readers could have at the beginning were answered in the article.	Thank you for your sincere review of our research.
#2 The Authors present a well-documented case of recurrence of intratendinous ganglion due to incomplete excision of satellite lesion in the extensor digitorum brevis tendon. This case can have educational relevance to a specialized audience. I do not have any special comment. My only concern is the use of English language. I understand that the Authors are not native English speakers (and I am not, too), but major English polishing is required before publication.	Thank you for your sincere review of our research. We have implemented a new English proofreading.
