Comments from the reviewers:

Reviewer #1:

Comment (1): Scientific Quality: Grade C (Good)

Language Quality: Grade B (Minor language polishing)

Conclusion: Minor revision

Endometrial adenocarcinoma is the most common tumor of the female genital tract in developed countries, ranking fourth in incidence among invasive tumors in women. atypical endometrial hyperplasia and endometrial carcinoma patients are diagnosed younger, and up to 22%-66% of atypical endometrial hyperplasia patients are infertile. In this manuscript, the authors reported a case of atypical endometrial hyperplasia in a 35-year-old woman. The case is very well described and discussed. After a minor revision, the manuscript can be accepted for publication.

Response: We agree that the Reviewer has captured the major points of our manuscript, which is appreciated.
