

Response to the reviewers:

Thanks so much for your comments and approval.

1.Response to comment: However, in my opinion, you have given too much importance to the dental implant technique and not so much to the patient. In daily clinical practice it is vitally important to listen to the patient, but in this type of publication this is not enough, it must be measurable and quantifiable.

Response: Thank you so much for your thorough reading and comments. Actually, we paid much attention to the patient throughout the treatment as well as before and after the operation which we might not mention much in our manuscript. We did not do the quantifiable test of quality of life before and after the intervention on the patient, but the patient was relaxed during the process. And during the treatment, we kept closely communication about the patient's tension and anxiety as well as humanistic caring. Besides, we noticed that the digital guide plate was stable and not easy to cause foreign body sensation nor fall off. Moreover, we paid attention to the tooth pain and systemic symptoms before and after the treatment. The rectification was made according to your advice.(Page 13, line 2 & Page 13, line 6)

2. Response to comment: In addition, it must be stated that the intervention on the patient complies with the requirements of the Declaration of Helsinki.

Response: Thank you for your reminder. The intervention on the patient complies with the requirements of the Declaration of Helsinki. We rectified it according to your suggestion. (Page 7, line 5)

Thanks again for your comments and sincere advice.
