

Responses to reviewers' comments on manuscript no. 91532

Dear Editor :

Thank you for your decision letter concerning our manuscript entitled "Computed tomography-based radiomics to predict Early Recurrence of Hepatocellular Carcinoma Post-Hepatectomy in Patients Background on Cirrhosis" (ID: 91532). I also appreciate all the critical comments from the reviewers. We have carefully considered the comments and revised the manuscript accordingly. With these improvements, we hope that the revised manuscript will be acceptable for publication in World Journal of Gastroenterology. The following is a point-by-point response to all comments.

Sincerely,

I had reviewed with interest your manuscript titled (Computed tomography-based radiomics to predict Early Recurrence of Hepatocellular Carcinoma Post-Hepatectomy in Patients Background on Cirrhosis) which was well designed, I totally respect your limitations of study regarding study nature, number of included patients and single center study the question about high recurrence rate which approximate to 53% , if this depend upone presurgical sellected criteria for hepatectomy and the point of early microvascular invasion needs more data analysis.

Answer:We thank the reviewers for their kind and careful evaluation of the paper. We agree with reviewer's comments.We have added the specific requirements for hepatectomy to the MATERIALS AND METHODS section highlighted in yellow. In addition, many studies have shown that microvascular invasion is related to early recurrence after liver cancer surgery. We have added this part to the DISCUSSION section of the article and highlighted it in yellow. In addition, our team is also conducting research on radiomics to predict microvascular invasion.
