Peer-reviews: This is an interesting article focused on the detecting volatile organic compounds (VOCs) and 27 candidate polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAH) from electrocautery smoke. The main draw back relates to the sample size, though one can say that these type of samples are quite rare to come by. The name of the institute including the IRB protocol number has to be included in the manuscript. A few more suggestions in the body of the manuscript using track changes.

Authors' Answer: Thank you for your comment. We have revised our article according to the your comments.
