

Thanks for your constructive and valuable reviews for this manuscript. I have added example of a recent survey-based study with the relevant reference. I have also added the importance of influencing decision makers, particularly in developing countries. However, I have not gone into further details of some of the other studies considering this is an opinion review on how child mental health professionals could contribute to the ecological crisis rather than a systematic evidence synthesis in this regard.